

Student Learning Outcomes for B.A. in Global Cultures

1. Discuss humanistic perspectives related to history, literature and language, and other humanistic subdisciplines of their interest.
2. Employ a humanistic perspective to problems and processes of globalization.
3. Analyze the history, politics, and culture of a selected world region, and how it intersects with other regions.
4. Demonstrate a global perspective in analyzing and/or solving contemporary world region problems.
5. Appreciate the complexity of the modern global arena in which we live, and use that understanding to contribute to society in a constructive and positive manner.
6. Present to others (in oral or written form) in a coherent and professional manner the knowledge they have obtained in analyzing global issues, particularly those that have been of special interest to them during their undergraduate career.